Owning a Home.

The Asbury Park Journal says:

"Every mechanic or laboring man in New Jersey who earns $10 to $20 or more a week can own his own home, if he will lay aside monthly from five to ten dollars by placing it in a building and loan association.

"The report given for last year in the the Bureau of Labor and Statistics shows the favorable standing of these importa t enterprises and how they are springing up wherever their beneficial results are shown. A greater impetus is given in the lower part of the State owing to the influence from Philadelphia which has six hundred of these organizations and nearly every laboring man or clerk owns his own house.

"According to the report, New Jersey has 150 associations. Camden has twenty-two, Monmouth six, the balance divided among the others. The capital stock represents $10,000,000, with $12,000,000 actually invested. The investment means many thousands of homes owned by poor people who would have paid out the same money in rents and in the end would not have owned the houses as they do now.

"Many of the older associations have retired their earlier series. The first series in one of Burlingtou's associations matured in eight years. The usual time is about ten years. The Woodbury association, fifteen years old, has retired four series, and has $300,000 in loans. Asbury Park association in thirteen years has retired three series and has nearly $75,000 invested on bond and mortgage. Almost every association shows careful management, attended with great success. The only place where trouble has occurred was at New Brunswick. The building of a large hall by a co-operation of the associations and the failure of a bank made it difficult to realize the funds when needed."

Newark National Banks Must Pay Taxes.

In the United States Supreme Court at Washington Monday a decision was rendered in the case of the National Newark Banking Company against the Mayor and Common Council of Newark. The decision sustains the city's right to tax the stock of national banks. The suit was originally brought by the Banking Company against the municipal authorities to restrain the latter from collecting taxes assessed upon the shares of stock of the company.

The banks involved directly in the case, according to City Counsel Coult's statement, are the North Ward Bank, the Second National Bank, the Essex County Bank, National State Bank, City National Bank, German National Bank and the Newark National Banking Company. The suit of the latter was carried to the Supreme Court and made a test case. The amount of banking stock assessed is about $2,500,000. The returns to Newark from taxes of 1884, '85, and '86 will be about $50,000.

Montclair.

The funeral of the late Theron H Sandford was attended at the residence on Park street, at 3 on Monday afternoon. The attendance was very large, and friends had to be turned away. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Berry, of the Presbyterian Church.

At midnight on Monday last the Montclair Skating Rink, which is now being used as a storehouse by George J. Stanford, formerly of Bloomfield, was broken into by thieves who gained entrance by prying open the windows.

About two years ago Jas. Fox, of Montclair, engaged what is known as Ashland Hall on Bloomfield avenue for a boarding-house. Mr. Fox soon after had a dispute with his wife which resulted in his leaving the town. On Tuesday he came into town with five large trucks and with his men began to move the household goods from the building. Mrs. Fox forbade him to move anything from the house, but he paid no attention to her, and took away the goods and stored them in a livery stable near by.

—Mr. Moffat is busy making a canvass of the town for his new directory.

Catharine Lynch.

On Monday last, at Montclair, was buried Catharine Lynch, for many years a servant in the family of the late Rev. Joseph S. Gallagher. She had attained the age of seventy years, and during her whole life had been faithful in the discharge of the duties given her to perform. She was a devoted Catholic, but the most earnest Protestant could not have questioned her Christianity. She was one of that class, rapidly diminishing, who serve as much from love as for wage, and who in addition to being servants, are devoted friends. For years she was the sole support of her invalid sister, and was, in her way, and to the extent of her small means, charitable to all. Few women in her sphere of life have passed away more sincerely mourned, and of few can it be said more truly, "she has been faithful unto death."

Newark.

The annual meeting of the congregation of the High Street Presbyterian Church was held Wednesday evening, and Rev. Dr. McIlvaine presented his resignation as pastor of the church, to take effect on the last day of June. His resignation was accepted, and Messrs. Wm. Rankin and Chas. G. Rockwood were appointed a committee to unite with the pastor in asking Presbytery to dissolve the pastoral relations between the church and pastor. Resolutions of esteem and respect for the retiring pastor were unanimously adopted and a resolution was also adopted requesting the Board of Trustees take into consideration the advisability of having some memorial of the late Jame B. Pinneo placed in the church. The financial condition of the church was reported by the clerk to be good.

STATE ITEMS.

Mrs. Inglesby, formerly of Newark, left $5,0 0 to the Passionist Monastery of West Hoboken for a missionary fund.

A colored boy at Iselin has accused himself and another lad of a burglary which has been ascertained, neither committed.

Local Assembly No. 84 of the Knights of Labor at New Brunswick has formed a co-operative association of its members for the purchase and sale of coal and other fuel, and will lease or purchase a site for an extensive yard.

Would Abolish the Oath in Law.

Said a prominent lawyer the other day: "The oath in law should, I think, be abolished. It has retained its place upon the theory that it tends to secure the telling of the truth, but it does not. I have been for thirty years constantly about courts of law, and I unhesitatingly say that any person conscientious enough to regard an oath will tell the truth without one, and for those who may be restrained by the fear of punishment for perjury the statutes can be so amended as to make lying upon the witness stand or the subscription of false affidavits in legal proceedings punishable by the same penalties now attached to perjury.

"During the thirty years that I have named I have carefully watched the course of legal morality, and I tell you that perjury becomes daily more common and the oath lighter and more perfunctory. The clerk drawls out the form of oath without pause or punctuation. The witness, with falsehood deliberate and rehearsed in his heart, drops his right hand, takes the stand, the lie comes glibly to his lips, and some man's property, reputation or liberty are sworn away for dollars or for a grudge.

"The inconsiderate profanity of the angry or drunken man is harmless when compared with the indolent indifference with which officers administer and the black perjury with which witnesses take the oath. If we cannot make lying in judicial proceedings less, let us at least make it more decent and less profane.—Detroit Free Press.

Rules for Reading with Profit.

To read with profit calls for no elaborate rules and no cast iron system. It requires only these two things: First, that we shall read intelligently, and to that end that we master what we actually do read; and, second, that we follow up whatever interest may be aroused in reading, so as to make the general tenor of our reading illustrate itself. Any person who will faithfully follow these two simple rules for one year will be surprised at the extent, the diversity, and the continuity of the knowledge he has acquired; and others will be equally astonished at the culture of mind and the felicity of speech he has attained. Within a short time there will be few subjects upon which he will not be prepared to speak with pleasure to himself and others, because there will not be many subjects on which he is not more or less informed, and of which he has not more or less extensively thought. As a method of acquiring the almost forgotten art of conversation no method of profound study could possibly surpass the simple method of self culture we have indicated. For the greatest charm of cultivated conversation is facility in apt and striking illustration, such as nothing but extensive and intelligent reading can impart.—St. Louis Republican.

The Psychic Man and the Cosmic.

It is not the fashion just now to admire wholly vital men. The ideal man is a disembodied affair. But we must not forget that some of the grandest types were magnificently vital, with large appetites and surging impulses.

Your Shakespeares and your Goethes were powerful furnaces that shook by the violence of their combustion the delicate machinery they propelled. Your Handel was like an oak whose roots are in a morass but whose branches are in Heaven. And from St. Paul to John Knox we shall have to follow the events of history by the great vital captains that helped to make it.

I leave it to æsthetic pietism to say, if in its efforts to establish the purely psychic man it is not in danger of abolishing the cosmic man.—Nym Crinkle in New York World.

Chemical Properties of Sunlight.

Photographic experiments now reveal extraordinary chemical properties in the sun's rays, while, strange to say, some of the rays are entirely destitute of this peculiar power. It has also been discovered that there are rays of light outside of the solar spectrum, and which are invisible to to the human eye.—New York Sun.

A Discovery in Drilling.

A workman at the Carson mint has discovered that drill points heated to a cherry red and tempered by being driven into a bar of lead, will bore through the hardest steel or plate glass without perceptibly blunting.
